As part of this support, the UCF also commits to making a voluntary, non-mandatory effort to help the above farmer get a market for his/her sorghum after harvest. Per the market linkages that the UCF has already established prior to providing farmers with sorghum seed this planting season, the above-named farmer will be paid UGX 700 per kg for their sorghum at harvest, only and only if their sorghum has been collected from them by the UCF at harvest. If this farmer isn't comfortable with that price and would like to sell their sorghum elsewhere instead, he/she is free to do so. In that case, the UCF owes nothing to that farmer. In all cases, farmers owe nothing to the UCF, whether or not their sorghum has been sold through the UCF. That's, farmers are not supposed to repay the UCF for seed, or the training received.
